RP Sure thing mine is @rpp20

Tsot

You have both been given access.

T sl666 isnt coming up as a member I can add, maybe you need to login to gitlab first

Rahul P

RP Fantastic, I just received the email.

Wed 22 Jan, 15:51

Tsot

You should have all received emails inviting you to a Trello team

T Please login tonight, so we are fully functional tomorrow so I can explain how it works

T Leading to the next point of, we should meet up tomorrow after our classes. Is everyone free?

I know we were meant to meet today but I have a interview so I need to prepare for it. I think tomorrow works perfect at 6pm

Rahul P

Brilliant - appreciate that Tsothe I'll have a read in an hour or so.

RP

Yeah I agree, 6pm tomorrow works for me! See you all then

AJ

A

I can now confirm I have received the emails and will implement the contents of the email as soon as possible.

Tsot

Great. I thought we could use an app to schedule meetings dynamically, making it easier for everyone

I would like to invite you to the Doodle poll "Software Engineering Meeting"

In addition to the website, download the app on your mobiles to stay up to date with the current to do list.

This is great. It will really help us track things and do them as efficiently as possible.

Great idea.

Hey guys, I have booked conference room 2 at the library on floor 2 tomorrow at 7pm. We can meet-up and get a good amount of work completed.

Rahul P

RP

Sounds good - will see you guys there!

Brilliant, looking forward to it!

have different access levels from ordinary users, but might wish to login without elevated privileges. Which was absent in the UML Diagram provided. Do you still want to implement this? If so we can add this to the Diagram. While this might not be obvious from the diagram, I think it is present in the scenario description: "1. User provides user name and password and requested access rights." That is also primarily why the different user types are shown in the Authentication diagram. So, I am not sure that anything further needs adding to the diagram to support this.
